

REVISED LAWS FOR MOTOR VEHICLES

The rules and regulations of the public utilities commission regarding headlights on motor vehicles which were promulgated in August, 1917 under the provisions of a law enacted by the legislature of that year and which have been disregarded by a great many motorists on account of the fact that it has been generally supposed that no penalty was attached to this violation, comes into added prominence this year through the fact that the last legislature imposed an important responsibility upon the secretary of state in this regard.

Under the provisions of the revised motor vehicle laws which become effective Jan. 1, 1920, the secretary of state must demand a statement from the applicant as to whether the motor vehicle for which registration is asked, is equipped with lights which conform to these rules and regulations. If the lights do not so conform, the secretary of state must refuse to register the motor vehicle and must also refuse to grant to the owner a license to operate the same. It is true that there has been no specific penalty for operating a motor vehicle not equipped with proper lights and for this reason a great many motorists have disregarded the whole law, much to the annoyance of the many thousands who have endeavored to live up to its provisions.

With the going into effect of the new revision, however, the person who takes his car on to the highways with lights which do not conform to these regulations subjects himself to a heavy penalty. As will be found by a careful study of the new laws, Section 20 of the revised statutes, which has been renumbered Section 19, has this to say regarding lights: "All lights attached to motor vehicles shall conform to the rules and regulations as promulgated from time to time by the public utilities commission."

Section 22 of the revised statutes, which has been re-numbered Section 21 by the revision reads: "Whoever violates any provision of the five preceding sections, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $25 for the first offense, and not less than $25 nor more than $100 for the second offense committed during any period of 12 months, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding 60 days. Section 19 as re-numbered is of course included in the "five preceding sections," and there is little doubt that the penalty thus attached includes the violation of the light law. It is understood that the public utilities commission refuses to approve any particular lens for the reason that it is extremely difficult to do so under the present law.

The public utilities commission stipulate that no bulb or lamp shall be used in any headlight which is of a greater candle power than 24, or equivalent wattage. The lens in the headlight must be so arranged that on a level road the reflected ray at a distance of 75 feet in front of the motor vehicle shall not be greater than 42 inches from the ground. The commission also frowns very severely upon the use of spotlights, although it recognizes the fact that a spotlight has its legitimate use.

The Maine Automobile association has recommended the barring of the use of spotlights entirely, but the commission has evidently not felt satisfied in going so far as to absolutely forbid their use. In promulgating rules and regulations in 1917 the commission does say however, that if these lights are improperly used they will be entirely barred.

GEN. WOOD LEADS IN CONGRESS POLL

A confidential poll of Congress made by The Cincinnati Enquirer indicates that General Leonard Wood is strongly favored for the Republican Presidential nomination. He received more preference than all of the other candidates combined in the answers to this question:

"Who, in your opinion, will be the nominee of the Republican Party for President in 1920?"

Assurance was given to members that their replies would be treated confidentially and that only the general result would be made known.

The poll showed the following: House.—General Wood, 116; Governor Frank O. Lowden, 41; Senator

James E. Watson, 23; Senator Warren C. Harding, 22; Senator Hiram Johnson, 21; William H. Taft, 20; General Pershing, 19; Senator Philander C. Knox, 1; Governor William C. Sprout, 1; noncommittal, 15. Absent, 7.

Senate.—General Wood, 20; Senator Harding, 4; Senator Johnson, 4; Senator Watson, 3; Senator Poindexter 2; Charles E. Hughes, 1; Senator Borah, 1; Senator Kellogg, 1; Senator Spencer, 1; Senator Edge, 1; Senator Sutherland, 1; General Pershing, 1 noncommittal, 5.

The poll, it is said, showed that the New England Republican Congressmen were almost unanimous for Wood, who was born in New Hampshire and educated at Harvard University.

The members from New York State also showed a strong preference for General Wood, due, it is surmised, to the Plattsburg movement and his association with the late Colonel Roosevelt. Fifteen New York members expressed a preference for him, one for Lowden, one for Watson, one for Taft, one for Pershing, and three were noncommittal.

Nineteen members of the House from Pennsylvania declared for Wood. Lowden had one supporter from that State, Harding one, Knox one and Sprout one.

After the meetings of the Republican and Democratic National Committees here next month national politics will be in full swing. These meetings will be held chiefly to decide upon the convention cities. Chicago seems to have the lead for the Republican convention, with Cleveland, Indianapolis, St. Louis, and San Francisco seeking the Democratic convention.

An effort will be made at the Democratic meeting to put through a resolution favoring the repeal of the two-thirds rule for the nomination of a Presidential candidate. The leading members of the committee are reported to be against such a move.

After this meeting or shortly before it is expected that President Wilson will let it be known in a rather formal way that he will not seek another nomination. This will be the signal for the announcement of the candidacy of Attorney General Palmer for the Democratic nomination, and perhaps Secretary Baker will permit his name to go before his own State, Ohio.

TRIAL FOR THE KAISER

The trial of the former Emperor William of Germany once more is agitating Europe, and from a semi-official statement issued here, it would appear that Holland has decided not to stand in the way if the principal allied and associated powers carry out their announced purpose of arraigning the one-time kaiser before an international tribunal. It is apparent from dispatches reaching this country that public sentiment in Holland is being prepared for a government decision yielding up the emperor when the allies make demand.

It is assumed by the Dutch government, apparently, that no request for the extradition of the former kaiser will be made until the treaty of Versailles becomes fully operative, and the league of nations is a going concern. By that time Holland will herself be a member of the league, and as such, it is inferred from the semi-official statement, she will be willing to abide by the decision of the council of the league as to what steps shall be taken to punish the man held responsible for instigating the greatest war of all times.

Holland Turns to League.
Holland has determined definitely to become a member of the league of nations when it is formally established. In doing this she apparently feels that the perplexing question as to what shall be done with the kaiser virtually has been solved for her.

At the present time there is no international machinery by which the allied nations could call for the surrender of the wood-chopper of Amerongen, and no international law which would justify the Dutch people in robbing him of his asylum.

With the coming into being of the league of nations, however, it is contended in allied circles that the machinery for dealing with the kaiser will have been established.

The trial of the kaiser is provided for in the main body of the treaty of Versailles, but the league of nations is the instrument through which the provisions of the treaty are to be enforced.

It would seem from the statement issued in semi-official Dutch quarters that Holland is ready to accede to this view.

Has Never Wanted Kaiser.
The surrender of the former kaiser is not to be made a condition upon

Holland in her desire to become a member of the league of nations. The allies, it is said, would not be guilty of such crude work as that. Holland it is pointed out, has never wanted the kaiser. He was a most unexpected and unwelcome guest. But he came as a private citizen and there was no way to get rid of him.

It is possible that Holland now is reconciled to abiding in the wishes of the league of nations in the matter of the kaiser's trial, because the talk of "hanging the kaiser" seems to have died away, and the punishment meted out to him might be that of public opprobrium rather than something more personal.

The trial of the kaiser, despite the stir in Europe, is a remote affair, however. Nothing can be done in that direction until the United States ratifies the treaty of peace.

OPEN RHEIMS PLAY GROUNDS

Little children of Rheims are growing healthy and strong and learning again to play in playgrounds that have been opened by the Y. W. C. A. War Work Council, says a letter just arrived from France. Two playgrounds of the most modern sort have been equipped in populous districts of the war shattered city, and are not only bringing health to the children, but freeing the parents, who are engaged all day long, the fathers in rebuilding their homes and the mothers putting in order the interiors or preparing to return to them.

Each playground has a basket ball field and is equipped with volley ball, and the old beams which shored up the battle trenches in the vicinity are being utilized for see-saws, the German prisoners bringing them in, preparing the boards and putting them up. The prisoners have also filled in the shell holes in these open plots of land. Here the children play from 9 to 11 in the morning and from 3 to 6 in the afternoon.

A new foyer has been put up by the Y. W. C. A. on the Boulevard Lundy, which has recently been cleared of barbed wire and opened to traffic. The mothers are using the sewing machines to make curtains and clothes and there are indoor games for the children for use in inclement weather. There is an indoor baseball set, bean bags, sandpiles, see-saws and swings, with games and books.

Later, as soon as the tram service has begun, there will be sewing classes for the girls and women who wish them and classes in French, spelling, letter writing, arithmetic and geography for the girls whose education was interrupted by the war. There will also be talks for the girls who do domestic work and lectures on health, with gymnasium classes both day and evening. The Marquis de Polignac is co-operating in enlarging the circulating library. A sixteen-year-old French girl who joined an English class in June has written a theme upon the Foyer, in which she said among other things:

"The Foyer is a good institution. It gives young girls a sane and agreeable pastime, especially in the devastated towns. French women will learn to know their American friends. * * * I ask above all that the Foyer remain in France as long as possible."

NO LET-UP

It is reassuring to hear from Atty. Gen. Palmer that there is to be no "let-up" in the arrest and deportation of alien anarchists. They have been tolerated too long. When the government has made fitful efforts to suppress them, the enemies of peace and order have been allowed to slip through the hands of the law almost as soon as they were apprehended. When the people saw a leading woman anarchist, who had been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, released on bail, and allowed, week after week, and month after month, to go about preaching revolution; and when they saw a leading Socialist radical who had been sentenced to a long term of imprisonment under the espionage act, not only going scot free, but elected to Congress and taking his seat among the national legislators it was hard for them to believe that the government was in earnest. Happily, we are at the end of the latter scandal. The vote of 309 to 1, by which Victor L. Berger has just been unseated, is evidence that Congress is awakening to a sense of its responsibility.

According to the latest reports, at least 400 of the anarchists arrested in last week's raid are held on deportation warrants. They cannot be deported too soon, when their guilt is established. These raids were made on Friday and Saturday; and because of the communist demonstration which was scheduled for Saturday afternoon in Rutgers square, New York did not come off as advertised; but on Sunday a crowd estimated 11,000 gathered in Madison Square Garden, cheered wildly speeches in praise of soviet rule, and adopted unanimously a resolution calling for the immediate withdrawal of American troops from Siberia.

The government will not have done its full duty in dealing with incipient anarchy until it traces the sources and means of support of the anarchist publications in Russian, Finnish, Hungarian, Lithuanian and other tongues with which the country is now flooded. According to Samuel A. Berger, Deputy Attorney-General of New York, who made a thorough investigation of the nearly 50 extreme radical foreign-language newspapers printed in New York, all but two are supported largely by subsidies from rich amateurs of revolution of the bouidoir Bolshevik type. Mr. Berger reported last month: "With two exceptions the editors or publishers have admitted to me that the income from their papers would not pay expenses, and that they would be bankrupt except for gifts from wealthy people of this city." These publications have, altogether, a circulation of 3,000,000, mainly in the great industrial centers.

The government has a large task before it in checking this revolutionary propaganda and adequately punishing those who are engaged in it. It cannot grapple with the task too soon, or carry it forward too energetically.

Brings the Best into Co-operation

It is no wonder that many are finding the new medicinal combination, Hood's Sarsaparilla before eating. Peppin, a real iron tonic, after eating and Hood's Pills as needed, remarkably effective as a course of treatment for giving vitality, vigor and vim, and increasing strength and endurance. Among the medicinal substances that this combination brings into co-operation are such cleansers, tonics and digestives as sarsaparilla, iron and pepsin, whose great merit has been fully established. Good results from such a combination, in cases amenable to treatment, seem to be among the "inevitables." The combination is especially recommended for those who are rundown, whose blood is poor, because of impurity or lack of iron, whose nerves are weak or unstrung, livers torpid or sluggish. Try it.

The Farmer's 8-Hour Day
When organized labor, at the Industrial Conference, demanded the 8-hour day for all industries, the Nation's organized farmers smiled. 'MY SOLDIER GIRL'
MUSICAL COMEDY

Full of pleasing melodies and offering an amazingly lavish production, the tuneful musical comedy, "My Soldier Girl," will be presented at the Temple Theatre, Thanksgiving day, Thursday matinee and night, Nov. 27 and should live up to its phenomenal magnet for the playgoer when it appears here. The excellent cast, including Dorothy Garrigue, Maude Baxter, Billy Moore, James Baber, Leslie Jones, Billy Murphy, James LeRoy and many other talented musical comedy players, are supported by a brigade of wonderful girls, who sing and dance so cleverly that the audience wonder if the management have cornered all the pretty girls in this country. The story is laid in two acts, the opening shows a grand fete in progress at Colonel Stone's home, Miami, Florida, in honor of the many "overseas" boys and girls. The last act presents a bewildering production of the Follies show during its final dress rehearsal under the management of Colonel Stone. The scenic production is carried out in both acts in its entirety, blending pretty color schemes and novel effects artistically. There are some twenty big song-hits, among the favorites are "My Soldier Girl," "That Dixie Wedding Tune," "Wrap Me Up in a Bundle of Love."

POTATOES
The local market has improved since last week, buyers paying $3.60 with few offerings.

The Produce News says:
Receipts this week have been fairly heavy from all sections. Quality as a rule has not been up to general expectations, and most of the potatoes still show more or less dry rot. There was no disposition among the dealers to put stock in storage, and the receipts were forced into consumptive channels. This has caused some irregularity in prices and values at the seaboard are relatively lower than at shipping points. At sight no good potatoes can be laid down here less than $4.67@4.75 on No. 1 grades.

The advance in price since last week was approximately $1 per bag on fine grades, with market closing strong and country prices so much higher than those obtained in this market, that a further advance is inevitable. Some of the large dealers here are reluctant about making future contracts as they can get no assurance from growers or dealers at country points that they will deliver stock at present prices. Some of the large operators have absolutely refused to make any future contracts unless contingent on the prices ruling in New York at date of shipment.

Virginia second crop potatoes are coming forward more freely, but quality as a rule is especially fine and prices have advanced $1 per bbl. this week on the best grades. Some of the Virginia potatoes coming are simply field run and these sold from $3.75 @4.25, while closely graded lots brought $4.50@4.75. Sales have been made for the past two or three days, including Friday morning, as high as $4.85@5.00 on closely graded stock, more particularly the McCormack variety.

Advices from Eastern Shore indicate that the growers are asking more money and that it will be difficult to lay any more stock in New York at present prices. In fact, some of the large growers have absolutely refused to make any prices at present and are not inclined to ship their stock until after the turn of the year. The Maine potatoes in some instances are showing up fine and closely graded. These sold at $5@5.25 per 165 lbs. bag, with some sales in the yards at from $3@5 bag lots they sold up to $5.35@5.50, but the latter price is somewhat exceptional as yet. Most of passing business on Maine potatoes in bulk per 180 lbs. has ranged from $5@5.25, but real fine stock if here, would bring more money.

The Pennsylvania potatoes coming in some cases are closely graded, and sold $5.50@5.75 per 180 lbs., while those arriving from New York State range generally from $4.75@5. The Long Island potatoes coming are rarely closely graded, with sales ranging $5.25@5.85 in bulk per 180 lbs. Very few Browns are coming from Jersey, as farmers are holding out firmly for $5 track per 165 lbs. and charge 25 cents for the sack in addition.

A few cars of Maine potatoes in this morning sold generally at $5.75@5.85 per 165 lbs. bag. However, the stock was not closely graded or free from prick and sold for immediate consumption to the local trade. The advices to hand at the close indicate a still hardening of values in the trade with some of the largest growers in New York and Maine refusing to make prices at present.

ADDITIONAL RULINGS ON REINSTATEMENT FOR WAR RISK INSURANCE

A series of decisions issued by the Director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury provides more liberal conditions for reinstatement of lapsed or canceled insurance. The provisions of Treasury Decision No. 47, allowing eighteen months from the date of discharge for reinstatement upon payment of only two months' premiums on the amount of insurance to be reinstated, are retained. That decision is liberalized, however, by a new provision that men out of the service are permitted to reinstate by merely paying the two months' premiums without making a statement as to health at any time within three calendar months following the month of discharge. After the three months following the date of discharge have elapsed, a statement from the applicant to the effect that he is in as good health as at the date of discharge or at the expiration of the grace period, whichever is the later date, will be required together with a written application for reinstatement and the tender of two months' premiums on the amount of insurance he wishes to reinstate. In order to give all former service men whose insurance has lapsed or been canceled, a fair chance to reinstate their insurance, including men who have been out of the service eighteen months or more, and who are therefore barred from reinstatement under the former ruling, a special blanket ruling is made which allows all ex-service men to reinstate their insurance before December 31, 1919, provided that each applicant is in as good health as at date of discharge or at expiration of the grace period, whichever is the later date, and so states in his application. Of course it is necessary that he tender the two months' premiums on the amount of insurance he wishes to reinstate.

Service men who reinstated their insurance by payment of all back premiums prior to July 25, 1919, when the decision requiring payment of only two months' premiums went into effect, upon written application to the Bureau may have any premiums paid in excess of two applied toward the payment of future premiums. For example, if after a policy had lapsed for six months, a man reinstated and paid six months' premiums instead of two, he may secure credit for four months' premiums.

The provisions for reinstatement do not protect a man until he actually reinstates. If he waits he may not be in as good health as he was at the time of discharge and consequently may not be able to secure reinstatement. Don't put off reinstatement. Do it now!

AUTOMATIC PHONES BY BELL COMPANY

Automatic telephones will be installed by the Bell Telephone Company within the next two or three years, according to an announcement made by L. H. Kinnard, vice-president and general manager of the company.

With the new equipment on local calls, the subscriber, by the operation of a dial on his telephone is able to set in motion apparatus in the central office which will automatically connect him with the telephone of the subscriber he wishes to reach.

Each telephone will be equipped with a revolving circular dial on which are shown numbers from 0 to 9. The subscriber wishing to call a number lifts the receiver and turns the dial to indicate the number he wants to reach. This causes the mechanical apparatus in the central office to connect immediately with the number desired.

On toll and long distance calls, dialing a given number, the subscriber will reach the toll operator, who will complete the call as is now done under the present system.

An Enormous Undertaking

While it is expected that the first offices of the new type will be installed within the next two or three years yet the complete conversion of the present system is an enormous undertaking, particularly from the standpoint of manufacture of apparatus and its installation. While definite plans have not yet been worked out, it is thought that the major part will be completed in ten years, with a final clean-up sometime between that and the end of fifteen years.

During that time the present large telephone growth is sure to continue, and facilities must be at hand to meet the increased demand for telephone service. The change of systems will be brought about by putting the new type offices in where new offices are required or where present ones must be replaced.

It is expected that the first central office in Philadelphia will be placed in service some time in 1921 or 1922. Thereafter there will be approximately two central offices of the new type placed in service each year.

Operators Will Be Needed

One of the most interesting side-lights on the coming of the new kind of equipment is its relation to the telephone operator for, contrary to the thought in the minds of some, the coming of the new equipment will never make it necessary for telephone operators to seek other kinds of employment.

Said Mr. Kinnard, "That may sound queer, but remember that the change from one system to the other is a big job and will take ten years or more. Remember, also, if you will, that we shall always continue to need operators for toll and long distance calls, for information work, for special traffic and other kinds of calls."

PUTS SCREWS ON GERMANY

The peace conference has notified the German government that the peace treaty will not go into force until Germany fulfills certain obligations under the armistice and which have not yet been carried out.

Unless Germany ceases its representatives in Paris will full powers to sign a protocol pledging Germany to carry out certain stipulated conditions, the treaty will not come into force. The allied and associated powers will then have recourse to "any coercive measure" which they may deem appropriate.

Surrender of Vessels

Among the conditions set forth in the proposed protocol are requirements that Germany deliver over certain vessels for the destruction of the German fleet at Scapa Flow within 60 days; that within 90 days Germany deliver over 400,000 tons of floating docks, cranes, tugs and dredges; that the destroyer B-98 also be surrendered to the allies; that within 10 days the machinery and engines of three submarines be surrendered to offset the destruction of submarine U-48, and that Germany also pay the allied government the value of certain exported aerial material.

According to the treaty, its terms would come into force from the date of a first process verbal to be deposited at Paris. This process verbal can be drawn up only after Germany on the one hand and three of the principal allied powers have deposited at Paris their ratification of the treaty. The note to the German government which was sent Saturday night, Nov. 1, and is signed by M. Clemenceau, as president of the peace conference, explains that three allied powers—England, France and Italy—have now ratified the treaty, and that, Germany, having ratified, the conditions have been fulfilled for drafting the first process verbal, but that unless Germany fulfills certain violated armistice conditions, the treaty will not be put into effect.

To enable Germany to put itself into position to fulfill the conditions upon which the peace conference is now insisting, the peace conference has informed the German government that if it will authorize its representatives to sign the proposal protocol at the same time that the sign of the contemplated process verbal, such a process verbal will be drafted and signed by the allies, and the treaty permitted to come into force.

Baled Hay Brings the Highest Price

Baled hay is the easiest to handle, occupies less storage room and is in the proper shape for shipment to markets where the highest prices are paid.

Besides getting higher prices for your hay, you can also save money by baling it with a John Deere-Dain Motor Press—the hay press that makes neat, well-shaped bales quickly.

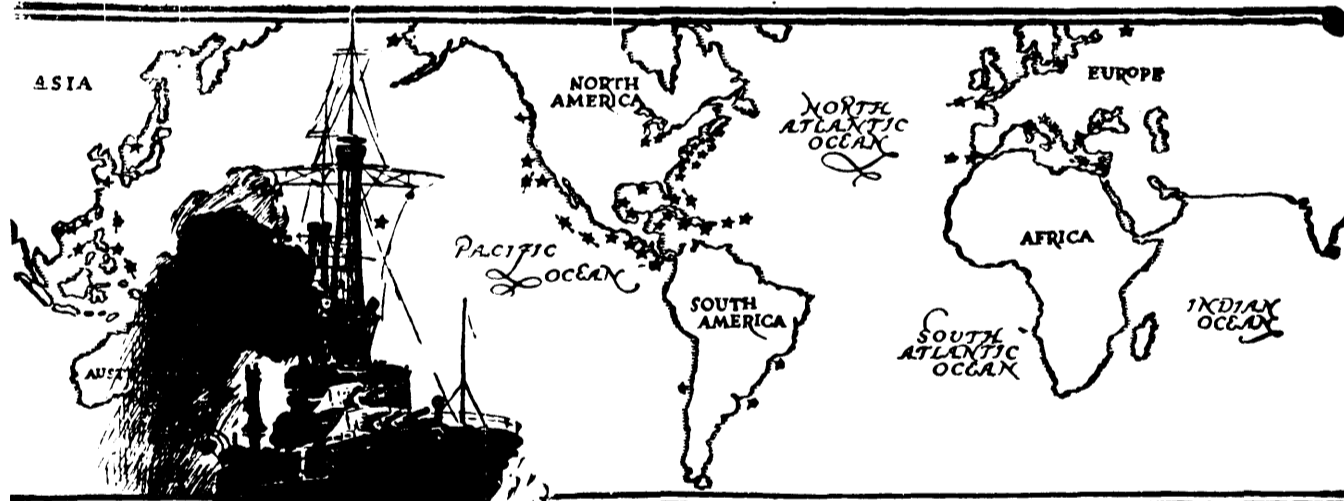

Come in and let us show you one of these presses, and explain to you why it does better work. We want particularly to show you the eccentric gear construction and to explain why, by mounting the gears off-center, more work can be accomplished without any increase in power. The powerful stroke of both plunger and self-feed arms, and the automatic tucker, insure neat, well-pressed bales, and the quick return of both plunger and self-feeder on the kick stroke gives plenty of time to feed the press. The improved form of block dropper is a convenience you will appreciate.

No matter whether you want a hay press for custom work or only for your private use, we can furnish you with a John Deere-Dain Motor Press of the right size and capacity.

HAVE REBUILT 20,000 MILES OF RAILWAY
 Rapid progress has been made in the repair and reconstruction of the railways in northern France, destroyed by the Germans during their retreat or wrecked in the course of the war. Of the 20,000 miles of track found destroyed at the time of the armistice practically all had been rebuilt by Nov. 1 and service re-established. The work included the rebuilding of 1180 bridges and the reconstruction in whole or in part of over 350 railroad stations. Great progress has also been made in resorting the ordinary roads. 30,000 miles of which, with the road bridges, were found unfit for use at the time of the armistice. Thirty thousand civilian and military workmen, working with an equipment of 4000 freight cars and 300 steam rollers, have been engaged in road and bridge building and have put in order 7500 miles of these roads.

COYOTE KIDNAPPED HER PUPPIES IN BAG

The coyote is unpopular both among human beings and among its fellow animals; but the coyote is very intelligent as well as unpopular, evidently sharing these peculiarities with the fox. Two young men who lived near Garfield, in the state of Washington, were plowing one spring when they came upon a family of three young coyotes. They took possession of the little creatures; and in the mean time the old coyotes, the little ones' parents kept hovering about in an unpleasant way.

By and by, to get rid of them, Mathews went to his house, got his brother Henry, a gun and a gunnysack. The little coyotes were put into the sack, which was then securely tied at the mouth. The old coyotes now disappeared, but in the hope of luring them so near that he could get a shot at them Mathews went to following the plowmen about the field, leaving at the end the bag with the little ones. Two or three times the party went around her field; but although the old coyotes were seen, they kept at a safe distance.

But soon as the plowmen and the gunner came around toward the place where they had left the sack they saw a strange sight; it was the old mother coyote, with the sack in her mouth, making off over the hill at full speed. Henry fired at her, but without effect. She made good her escape with her puppies tied up in the sack, and doubtless she had no difficulty in ripping the bag open and liberating the young ones as soon as she reached a safe place.

If she had been so foolish as to attempt to open the sack before picking up the puppies she would certainly have lost the young ones and her life.

COFFEE WITHOUT SUGAR

(Ida C. Bailey Allen, Author "Mrs. Allen's Cook Book," Etc.)

If the sugar shortage teaches a greater appreciation of sugarless coffee it will perform a real service. Good coffee, especially when served "black" without cream, needs no sugar. Connoisseurs know this, but the average American loads his cup with sugar and thereby loses the true coffee taste.

The habit of making coffee excessively sweet is due in part to faulty brewing which produces a bitter flavor. The wilder use of coffee, without sugar, or with little sugar, should help correct the careless and erroneous methods of preparation far too prevalent in American households.

The sugar famine also calls attention to the merits of coffee as a flavoring for desserts made without cane sugar. The principal sugar substitutes are honey, maple syrup, molasses and corn syrup, all of which are decidedly distinct in flavor and so must be used with a flavoring agent which not only blends, but is strong enough to disguise the taste of the substitute.

Coffee may be used especially well with any of these substitutes in the making of a wide variety of desserts. Further, if left-over coffee is used, it may in many recipes replace part of the milk, making possible a distinct saving.

All measurements are level. Barely cover one and a half tablespoonsful of gelatine with cold water and let stand for five minutes. In the meantime, combine two and a fourth cupfuls of strong coffee, three-fourths cupful of corn syrup and a few grains of salt, and bring to boiling point. Add the soaked gelatine and one-third teaspoonful of vanilla, and turn the mixture into a mould to stiffen.

Combine one cupful of strong coffee with three cupfuls of milk. Beat together three eggs, six tablespoonfuls of honey, a few grains of salt and three drops of lemon extract. Add the coffee mixture, transfer to custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake until the custards are firm in the center.

Combine one cupful of very strong coffee with two cupfuls of light cream, one and an eight cupfuls of maple syrup, a few grains of salt, an egg yolk and one and a half teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Freeze in an ice cream freezer, in three parts of cracked ice to one of rock salt.

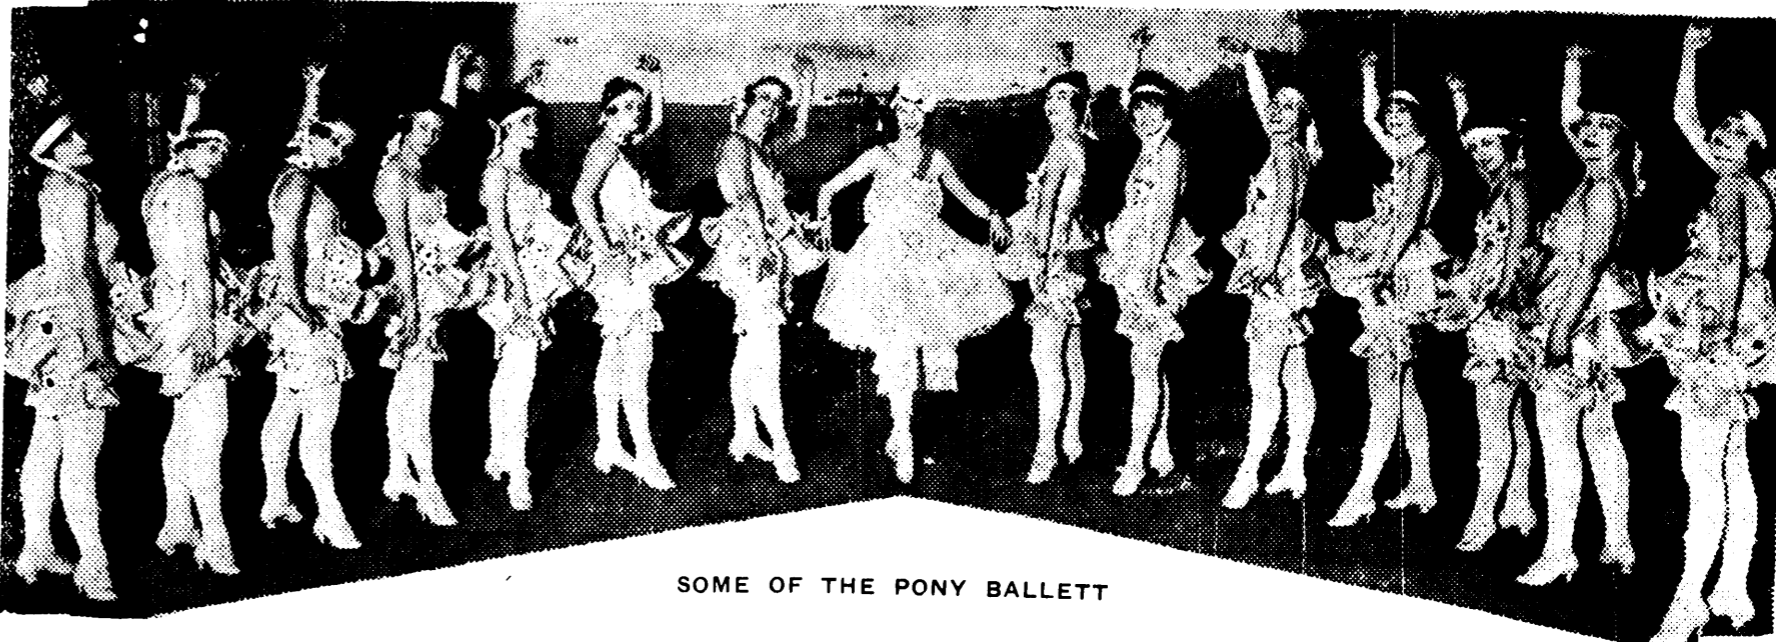

Combine one-half cupful of condensed milk, a few grains of salt, two cupfuls of boiling water and a cupful of strong coffee in a doubleboiler. Stir until well-blended, then add a third cupful of quick-cooking tapioca. Cook until the latter is translucent then beat two egg yolks, add a little of the tapioca mixture to them and stir this into the original mixture. Stir for a moment or two. Add a few drops of vanilla and pour the pudding into the beaten whites of the eggs, keeping it fluffy. Serve very cold.

Beat an egg in a mixing bowl and stir into it a cupful of molasses, three tablespoonfuls of melted shortening, two teaspoonfuls of ginger, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, a teaspoonful of soda, a half teaspoonful of salt and a half cupful of boiling coffee. Then beat in one and three-fourths cupfuls of sifted flour, transfer to a well-oiled dripping pan, and bake thirty-five minutes in an oven at 350 degrees F. Serve warm with butter, or hot or cold with whipped cream, which has been sweetened with a little honey and flavored with a few drops of lemon juice.

GABRIELLE D'ANNUNZIO STILL A HOT SPUR AT 55

With his bold seizure of the city of Fiume, Gabrielle D'Annunzio, Italy's brilliant poet-soldier added one more dramatic gesture to a life in which he already had achieved a permanent place in world history as poet, novelist, dramatist and soldier. The infatuation of the Italian troops for the dashing poet may be a tribute either to the magnetic personality of the man or the romantic appeal of his daring to the Latin temperament. It is difficult for any one outside the "boot of Europe" to grasp the secret of his power. "To tell the truth, I am a being not of this century," D'Annunzio declared several years ago when the archbishop of Paris interdicted his play, The Martyrdom of St. Sebastian, to all Christians. "I am a great lord of ancient days—sumptuous in tastes and unable to control them. I live without pursuing any special interests and my endless enthusiasm and love for the beautiful lead me to actions that the world at large—the cold, reasoning world—styles, extravagant."

There spoke the man who inflamed Italy to war and whose path of philandering is strewn with the broken hearts of women; the man who fearlessly battled in the air against the enemy of his country, and who took greater pride in his wardrobe of silk underwear and purple parasols than he did in his international reputation as a poet and a novelist. Gabrielle D'Annunzio has been consistent only in his inconsistencies, and the world has stood aghast and been amused at his "extravagant actions" in turn. And yet there is one course from which he never has wandered—that of patriotism. Throughout his life his one abiding interest has been Italy. In his poetic musing he has seen his country returned to the power that was hers when Rome ruled the civilized world, and since the first discussion of the peace treaty he has fiercely insisted on the annexation by his native land of the entire Dalmatian coast.

A Morbid Interest in Death. This idea of grandeur in death has ever held a morbid sway over the now 55 year old hotspur. Often he expressed the wish that he might go down in flames in his airplane behind the Austrian lines. "What more glorious death?" he was wont to ask. And the old idea of taking his own life gained a hold on his imagination, he spoke of diving in his plane into the very mouth of Vesuvius. So it may be wondered if he might not have been seeking death in this, his latest escapade, a death that would enshrine his memory with that of Garibaldi in the hearts of his countrymen. D'Annunzio is the spoiled darling of Italy. In 1880, when only 16 years old, his first volume of verse was published and won the applause of the critics. At 20 he was the pet of the aristocracy of Rome, and there followed a succession of adventures that might have corrupted morally a nature stronger than his. But, while sipping delightfully of the forbidden pleasure which came to him unsought, he maintained his genius throughout and never ceased to produce literature which, while it brought him the enmity and the ban of the vatican, strengthened his hold on his countrymen.

Won International Fame. And this is the D'Annunzio who exerted such a strange power over his feminine admirers, who won the most enthusiastic plaudits of literary critics, and swayed his fellows with his fiery words and daring deeds. His verse of 1880, Primo Vere, was followed three years later by a second volume, Canto Nuoro, and his name began to be mentioned in the same breath with that of Carducci, the great Italian lyric poet.

"In 1894, with the publication of Il Trionfo della Morte (The Triumph of Death), D'Annunzio ceased to be a national figure," says the New York Evening Sun. "His work received the seal of approval and more from the hands of the leading French critics, and from time on what the Italian poet and novelist wrote had an international audience. "Fuoco (The Flame of Life), published in 1900, marks perhaps the high point in the artistic career of D'Annunzio; in the last two decades he has attempted, with indifferent success, to express his artistic theories in the drama.

Exiled For His Debts. "In the more than 10 years which he devoted to the drama he was attempting to bring back to the stage of Italy the unity and the power of the classical Greek tragedy, yet so far were his efforts misunderstood that the popular verdict proclaimed his dramas 'tedious.' "The later years have seen little work issue from the pen of the poet."

PALE, WEAK, NERVOUS

The Condition of Many Men, Women and Children. To be well and strong and to have a good healthy color, be sure to try the real iron tonic Peptiron, by which many men and women have been greatly benefited. Peptiron is an excellent combination of iron and manganese with nux, celery, pepsin and other tonics and digestives, and is made with special reference to the needs of pale, weak, nervous sufferers. It is both medicine and food for the blood and nerves, and is signally effective in the treatment of anemia and neurasthenia. "My daughter is taking Peptiron for nervousness, and feeling better." Sarah F. Germond, Philmont, N. Y. Made by C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

the Sun continues. "He has been too absorbed with living. Harassed by debts that his own irresponsibility had burdened him with, an exile from his country, the years since the beginning of the twentieth century have been productive of little save his latest volume of verse, Laud, and his mystery play, The Martyrdom of St. Sebastian. "All the years that he was producing a large volume of work he had an utter contempt for materialism that expressed itself in a refusal to pay any attention to bills; he continued to live in luxury while the bills mounted. In 1910, when, according to a Parisian newspaper, his unpaid bills totaled some $30,000, his creditors descended upon him, his furniture and art treasures were seized and he himself was from that day an exile from his country, not to return until he went to rouse the Italians to war."

Found New Interest in War. The war brought new interest to the poet who had grown despondent in his years of exile in Paris and Versailles. With age he had lost something of his hold on his feminine following; the pleasure of selecting a cravat or a parasol to set off his olive complexion, or of concocting some new and strange perfume with which to scent his person, had lost its zest. Never but once had he descended from the dramatic to the ways of his fellows. That was when he married the beautiful daughter of the Duchess of Gallese. But soon after the wedding, he returned to his philandering, and the lessening by age of his personal charm to women had been one of the principal causes of his despondency. So he hailed the war as a delightful relief. With its end his friends had begun to ask what new distraction the poet would be able to find. For a while he was content to display his skill and daring in the airplane in which he had fought the Austrians. But this soon palled, and Italy ad begun to conjecture what new turn D'Annunzio's restless nature might take next, when his descent upon Fiume with a handful of adventurous volunteers answered the question.

WOOD ASHES AS A FERTILIZER. Wood ashes carry large amounts of readily available potash free from injurious materials and under present high prices for commercial potash should be saved and applied to the land. The potash content of ashes varies with the kind of wood, the method of burning, and the care taken with the ashes to protect them from rain. In a large number of analyses made at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station it is clearly indicated that different samples of ashes differ markedly in their manurial value. It is also clearly brought out that the unleached hard wood ashes are of much greater value than those from soft wood. This is due partly to the method of burning and partly to the way the ashes are kept. Potash is volatile at a not very high temperature and in case of very hot fires much of the potash is driven off and lost. Dump and furnace ashes are more or less exposed to the weather. The rains if copious enough to wet through the pile would leach the ashes and carry off more or less of the water soluble potash. In case of a dry pile partially wet, the water falling upon the top will dissolve out the potash in the upper layers and carry it to the lower part of the pile. In the case of damp ashes drying out, the movement of water is toward the top and the water containing the potash would be drawn to the top and evaporate, leaving at the top of the pile the potash in the form of a more or less crystalline crust. With the next rain this would be dissolved and carried down into the pile to again reappear at the surface in subsequent evaporation of the moisture. It, therefore, follows that the composition of a pile of wet ashes is not uniform and that portions of it would be poorer than other parts in potash.

In addition to the carbonate of potash, which is the water soluble potash in ashes there is some insoluble potash which consists chiefly of silicate of potash. This is only slowly if at all available to plants. Phosphoric acid is all in the insoluble form and how readily available is not known. Wood ashes as ordinarily prepared carry from 30 to 40 per cent of lime. This lime has the same value as any agricultural lime.

In addition to their manurial value ashes have a decided effect upon the capillary power of the soils. If a solution of carbonate of potash, such as potash of wood ashes, is poured upon loam, it will be made muddier and stickier than it would be if moistened with water. Investigations show that alkaline solutions seem to loosen the particles of the clayey soil from the particles of sand and float off the clay particles, and thus fill up the spaces between the sand grains. As a result of this clogging of the pores, the circulation of the water is much retarded. That this action of an alkali is sometimes of great practical importance is attested by the fact that soils are met with in which the particles of clay are held so closely to the grains of sand that the soil has the appearance and properties of a sandy soil, although it actually may contain as much clay as many so-called clay soils. Carbonate of potash has a tendency to keep clay in a "puddled" condition.

Potash salts also have a decided action upon soil nitrogen. Their alkaline solutions have great power to dissolve organic matters and render unavailable nitrogen available. This tendency of potash to promote rank growth is well illustrated wherever the land has been recently cleared of wood and the logs burned. The rankness of growth which follows is probably due not only to the available potash returned to the soil, but also to the abundant supply of nitrogenous food made available by the action of the alkali upon the soil humus and to the fact that alkali has a tendency to retain moisture.

As the presence of an alkali favors the growth of the fungus which produces potato scab, ashes should be used with large care on land where a crop of potatoes is to be grown. A bushel of good home burned, unleached hard wood ashes weighs about 48 pounds, and on the average contains about 4 pounds of potash, 1 1/2 pounds of phosphoric acid and 18 pounds of lime. Ashes of commerce usually carry about half this amount of potash.

Wet ashes are not much more compact than dry. While a bushel of wet ashes weighs considerably more than a bushel of dry ashes, the difference is chiefly due to the water. A bushel of wet or leached ashes contains about 50 pounds of dry matter or practically the same as a bushel of dry ashes.

Ashes, now come under the requirements of the fertilizer law and should carry an analysis showing the percentage of potash and of lime which they contain. The ashes are shipped from Canada vary greatly in composition, apparently largely due to the way in which the ashes have been stored. It is also possible that many of the so-called "unleached ashes" have been partially leached. As the amount of lime is far more important than the guaranty of lime. The amount of lime is practically the same in leached as in unleached ashes. CHAS. D. WOODS, Director.

CLEANED THE POISONS FROM HIS SYSTEM

A Massachusetts Man Grateful
Somerville, Mass. A well-known citizen of this city, who has suffered in the past, writes the following to Dr. J. E. True & Co.
"I have taken all kinds of laxatives, but none of them cleared the poison from my system as your Elixir will know what to use for better consideration the effects it had on me, and I feel wonderful how all my system needed, as a real clearing which only your Elixir gave. Other physics I have taken, merely passed through my bowels. (Name on Request)
Dr. True's Elixir has relieved thousands of sufferers during the last 68 years. Imagine a prescription actually lasting so long doctors come and doctors go, but Dr. True's Elixir. The Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, which has given the world by Dr. True is of old, the best friend to be found in your medicine chest.
Symptoms of Worms: Swollen upper lip, deranged stomach, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly, with occasional gripes and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short dry cough, grinding of teeth, little red spots striking out on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

After the Moults—EGGS

REMEMBER, going through the moult is like going through a long spell of sickness. To force out the old quills and grow new feathers saps a hen's vitality.

If you expect your hens to be fall producers and winter layers, then feed them Poultry Pan-a-ce-a during and after the moult.

Dr. Hess Poultry Pan-a-ce-a will start your pullets and moulted hens to laying

It contains Tonics that put your moulted hens in fine condition—Tonics that tone up the dormant egg organs—Iron that gives a moulted, run-down hen rich, red blood and a red comb. It contains internal antiseptics that destroy disease germs that may be lurking in the system. No disease where Pan-a-ce-a is fed. It pays to feed Pan-a-ce-a regularly.

It brings back the singing—it brings back the scratching—it brings back the cackle. That's when you get eggs; and it's eggs you want—fall eggs, winter eggs—when eggs are eggs.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Sedan, with electric self-starting and lighting system and demountable rims with 3 1/2-inch tires front and rear, for every day in the year has no equal as a family car. Just as popular on the farm as it is in the city. In fact, it fits the family demands in every vocation of life. Large, roomy seats, finely upholstered, plate glass windows make it an open car in pleasant weather, while in rainy and inclement weather it becomes a closed car, dust-proof and rain-proof. It is not only comfortable, but really cozy, and above all, economical in operation and maintenance, and has all the Ford merits of strength and durability.
